Respected Sir,

SUBJECT: "Seeking to consider the mistakes in the End Semester Exam MCQs of Advanced Instrumentation Techniques subject of Final B Pharm (Sem 8) conducted today and to arrange for providing grace marks regarding".

We the students of Shree Santkrupa College of Pharmacy, Ghogaon would like to bring to your kind perusal of some mistakes in the MCQs provided in the question paper of Advanced Instrumentation Techniques (Subject Code- 82076 ) and (Question paper code-9350QP) of 8th Semester B. Pharm, and make a request herewith to arrange for grant of grace marks in view of these mistakes.

The details of the mistakes are as below:

Q. No.2. Which one of the following is correct—

Both the order of arrangement of parameters / the signs used < / > are wrong making all options wrong. Further options b and c are same.

Q. No 9. Unit of Chemical shift is —

Answers: A PPM    B Delta    C Tau    and D All of the above .

Actually all these units were used historically, but the latest one is DELTA (Answer B).

If we consider the sentence – as singular that is shift is – the answer will be B. But, the option all of the above is also correct, historically all were used.

If the examiner's intention is to get a single answer, DELTA, he should not have provided the option all of the above. So, it needs consideration.

Principal
Dr. Ramling G. Patrakar
Shree Santkrupa College of Pharmacy

Q. No. 13. The framing of the question / the options provided are wrong.

With differentially substituted alkenes and substituted benzenes, the J coupling rule is not valid.

In that case answer b- BOTH A & B is correct.

But, with un-substituted alkene and benzenes answer d is correct.

As the question doesn't mention the conditions, there's need for consideration.

Q. No. 15. Is not framed correctly as it is not clear from the question what exactly the examiner wants from the student. Further, the options provided too are not very relevant.

For example option -C- 1 and 2 refers to what, is unclear.

Q.No.19. The long form of ICH is given as:

International Council On Harmonization and International Conference On Harmonization at different sites are used alternatively, both option are also given so, both answers need to be considered as correct.

For all the above reasons, we seek your cognizance on the issue and seek your necessary favourable consideration and intervention in the matter. We shall be grateful to you sir, if you could kindly consider the same and arrange for grant of grace marks / compensatory marks for these faulty questions / options and help secure our future.

Thanking you,

Yours faithfully,
